New Pell calculations reduce some awards

by Sue Ann Minor

Students receiving Social Security or Veteran's benefits may be in for a surprise when they have next year's Student Aid Report from Pell Grant processed at the Financial Aids Office.

Associate Financial Aid Director John Flynn said Monday that beginning in the 1982-83 school year, financial aids offices must make additional calculations to determine Pell Grant awards for students receiving Social Security or Veteran's benefits.

Previously, all students brought their SAR (formerly the Student Eligibility Report for Basic Grant) to the Financial Aid Office and, if all the information was complete, the award was based on an index number at the top of the form.

Flynn said those students receiving Social Security or Veteran's benefits will now have their award recalculated in each school's financial aids office.

"Now we take the cost of education minus Pell Grant based on the number on the front of the form, minus Social Security benefits, minus Veteran's benefits. If it comes out negative, we must subtract the amount from Pell Grant to bring that figure to zero."

Flynn said an example of this new policy would be to take this year's Pell Grant budget of $2,546 for an in-state, off-campus student, and subtract the full amount available for Pell Grant, $1,182.

A student under these circumstances would still show a financial need of $1,364, but with Social Security or Veteran's benefits subtracted, the student will probably end up losing some or all of his Pell Grant.

"A single veteran receives $342 per month," Flynn said. "That times nine months is $3,078 which means the student would need a minus $1,714. Right there he would lose his Pell Grant of $1,182."

Social Security benefits will be calculated in the same manner, he added.

Flynn said he knows of four or five veterans who have been affected by the new policy in the last few weeks. Some of the students affected received a full award last year and are surprised to find they are not eligible for aid this year when their financial situation has not changed.

He said Pell Grant guidelines for recipients of Social Security and Veteran's benefits were under consideration of being changed but nothing was announced.

"We did not know exactly how it would be handled until we got the first Pell Grant aid report announcement in late March."

Flynn said he has no answer for why students affected are not being notified of the changes directly by Pell Grant.

He said one reason to have financial aid offices notify students might be because Pell Grant has no way of knowing if the Social Security or Veteran's benefits will last the entire nine months or only part of the year.

The new policy for Social Security and Veteran's benefits is a way to ration money, he said.

"The program is based on resources for the student to defer cost of education. The G.I. Bill is earned benefits from working in the service and Social Security is the same because the parent earned it through employment," Flynn said. "Now they're taking these earned benefits and subtracting them from Pell Grant entitlement."

Summer open entry ends

by Leah Seawall

This summer will be the last opportunity for students to take advantage of Eastern's open admission policy, which admits all high school graduates to summer session, Summer School Director Charles Switzer said.

Switzer said effective summer 1983, students who do not meet the standards will still be admitted, but they will be required to enter a special program designed to work on basic skills during summer school.

The summer school entrance requirements are the same as the spring which require a student to maintain a ranking in the upper two-thirds of his high school class, or have an American College Testing score equivalent to that ranking. The equivalent spring and summer score is currently 17.

Switzer said the open admission policy is a good opportunity for persons who cannot meet the entrance requirements during the fall and spring semesters to be accepted to Eastern.

A major advantage of attending summer school is the smaller student-faculty ratio which allows for greater personal attention. Switzer said the average class size during the summer is 18 students.

Summer school is more intense and concentrated because the material for a semester is taught in five or eight-week sessions. Switzer said some students find this a positive aspect of summer school while others consider it a definite drawback.

This year's summer school theme, "Outreach: Mission for the 80s," emphasizes Eastern's service role which extends beyond the Charleston area, Switzer said.

He added summer school is given a theme to provide a unifying focus and to give a sense of purpose to an otherwise diverse semester.

This summer's evening college has been expanded to include 20 undergraduate and graduate classes. Switzer said the popularity of night classes has increased so that the average night class enrollment is higher than the average class enrollment during the day.

In addition, one and two-hour workshops have been scheduled at night to attract professionals who can update their knowledge and skills with a small time commitment, he added.

The visiting faculty program during the summer is also organized around the outreach theme. Switzer said the five participating individuals have all developed national and international reputations as both teachers and scholars.

These persons have broad backgrounds and should appeal to many people in the university community, he added.

Local stations report 'gas war' while prices begin to rise again

by Peggy McMeen

Gasoline prices at area service stations are on the rise again.

Arthur Willaredt Jr. from Willaredt Oil Co. in Mattoon said gasoline prices hit a low in mid-April but are "starting back up."

The Daily Eastern News reported March 16 that prices had dropped as much as 10 cents from the previous month, resulting in a "gas war" among area service stations.

Since April, wholesale prices have increased and retail prices have begun to rise in response to the hike, Willaredt said.

However, Willaredt said "demand is not that great" for gasoline, which could hold prices down to only a three to five cent increase.

"The demand will stay kind of flat" this summer, he added, because "the economy will cut down on vacations."

A spokesman for Clark Oil and Refining, 203 Lincoln Ave., said prices have begun to rise "from what I've seen."

The spokesman said he has observed competing stations raising their prices, but he had no predictions about the future trend in prices.

John Douglas of Old Main

Marathon, 515 Lincoln Ave., said prices have begun to rise at the station, although a "company-created surplus" exists.

"Marathon's got more oil than they know what to do with," Douglas said, but prices have risen five cents in the past week and a half.

Douglas said the sales representative for the station predicted "a long time ago that prices would rise in early summer."

Marathon, as of Wednesday, was selling regular self service gasoline at $1.11 a gallon and regular full service at $1.35 a gallon, he said.

Prices for regular self service at Lincolnland Standard, 200 W. Lincoln Ave., rose two cents Wednesday, to $1.12 a gallon, manager Larry McHenry said.

He predicted that prices will stay at that level "for a while."

Dick Dulumbuck, manager of University Shell, 419 W. Lincoln Ave., said wholesale prices for gasoline rose "about 10 days ago," although the station will try to hold prices the same "for competition."

"We may go up or stay the same," he said. "It depends on what everyone else does."

Polish bishops condemn riots

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Roman Catholic bishops Wednesday condemned the wave of riots that swept more than a dozen Polish cities and appealed for reconciliation talks between martial law authorities and the suspended Solidarity union.

The government, reverting to a tougher line, reimposed curfews and other restrictions in several cities because of the anti-government disturbances Monday and Tuesday.

In what was apparently the worst of the rioting, in the northwest port city of Szczecin Tuesday night, hundreds of youths tried to attack the local Communist Party headquarters and were routed by security forces using tear gas, reports Wednesday said.

Budget balance push diverting

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said Wednesday a constitutional amendment requiring balanced federal budgets might not work, and he complained the push for one by President Reagan and others diverts attention from more pressing needs.

The chief of the nation's central bank urged Congress to approach the question of such an amendment with "great caution."

"One of the difficulties I have with this amendment is it could be viewed as a substitute vote for doing something about the budget here and now," he told the House Judiciary subcommittee on monopolies and commercial law.

British renew talk of settlement

Shaken by its first casualties in the Falklands fighting, Britain on Wednesday revived talk of a peaceful solution, but Argentina gave no sign it was backing down, imposed belt-tightening measures to help the war effort and picked up military support from Venezuela.

The U.N. Security Council was scheduled to hold a consultative session later Wednesday on Ireland's request for an urgent meeting to end the Falklands fighting.

Despite rumors of large-scale military action over the Falklands, there was no official confirmation that any new fighting was in progress following the loss of the British destroyer Sheffield. Britain said it believed 30 men drowned in the attack. British government sources said another 57 were either wounded or missing.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, quoted authoritative sources as saying two Argentine submarines were cruising Britain's 200-mile war zone around the Falklands, and that the rest of the Argentine fleet was making for the mainland coast. There was no official confirmation.

Against a background of anger and dismay, British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym told the House of Commons in London he had transmitted a "constructive contribution" to a peace plan being worked on by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

"A vital ingredient of the ideas on which we are working is an early cease-fire and the prompt withdrawal of Argentine forces," Pym said. But the Argentines demand recognition of Argentine sovereignty over the Falklands before any withdrawal begins, and Britain refuses to concede sovereignty.

Pym's remarks were in stark contrast to statements by British leaders last week stressing that military and other pressure would be increased until Argentina gave the Falklands back to Britain.

Pym said the peace plan contains contributions from U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar and Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry, who has been floating his own cease-fire proposal.

Pym said Haig's peace efforts remained alive, despite the announcement Friday that the U.S. government was siding with Britain and imposing sanctions against Argentina. "There has been no suspension" of the effort, Pym said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that at President Reagan's direction, Haig "remains actively engaged in an effort to do all we can to assist in the peaceful outcome of the crisis in the South Atlantic. The ultimate solution must be peaceful or the consequences will be lasting and grave."

Haig held an unexpected meeting Tuesday with Britain's ambassador in Washington, apparently to discuss the British ideas.

Bar patrols will continue

by Dru Sefton

Charleston bars will continue to be patrolled during the summer months, Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said Wednesday.

Johnson said officers will continue to walk through local bars unannounced in an effort to cut down on underaged drinking.

More than 20 Eastern students have been arrested for violations of the city's underaged liquor ordinance since the crackdown began on Feb. 5.

"It doesn't surprise me that more Eastern students have been arrested than local kids," Johnson said. "There are more Eastern students around."

Johnson said he had expected more arrests when the crackdown began, but added that the department is not out to make a lot of arrests.

"We don't want to 'get' anyone, we just want to keep the underaged drinking under control," Johnson said.

He added there is "still a problem" with underaged drinking in the city and the police are "still working" to keep the problem under control.

Johnson said he has spoken with Charleston Mayor Bob Hickman several times concerning the situation and Hickman has urged continued surveillance of the bars.

Summer parties will also be closely patrolled by the police, Johnson added.

The same policy used during a crackdown on outdoor parties last year will be in effect, Johnson said.

He said officers will first warn those participating in a loud party, then make arrests if the party does not quiet down.

The police department, in cooperation with the city, has published a pamphlet on party control that is available at the police station, 520 Jackson Ave., Johnson added.

Bargaining rep says job will deal with student issues

by Nancy Montague

Bob Erio, newly elected administrative assistant for collective bargaining, said the main job in his position next year will involve handling student issues that arise.

"I'll be taking on things (issues) as they come up," he said. My involvement will coincide with new issues that arise."

Erio also said he plans to introduce a Student Senate resolution supporting the liquor tax that is pending in the Illinois General Assembly.

"The liquor tax is the major way, one of the few ways, to defer costs of education for students," he said.

Erio said if the liquor tax does not pass, tuition could rise again, although he said it does not seem favorable that the liquor tax law will pass in the legislature.

Erio also plans to attend the American Federation of Teachers contract negotiations this summer.

Erio said he will continue working on the teacher class statement project that Executive Vice President Tony Parascandola began this semester.

The project will include a publication containing a statement by teachers on what a certain class covers and the class requirements, he said.

Administrative Assistant Student government executives:

A closer look

The publication could possibly be available by spring semester, Erio said.

Erio said he is also concerned about the environment and energy conservation, particularly coal conversion.

"I would like to see what I can do in energy conservation, to promote that," he said, "especially with tightened budgets for next year."

Erio said he will continue working on Project Recycle which includes a paper drive scheduled every semester.

Erio said he will "work to find someplace to store the paper in a greater capacity."

A permanent storage bin is needed, he said, because profits are eaten up through payment for storage.

Also, Erio said an extra paper storage bin near Booth Library may be possible next year.

Erio said he would encourage organizations that want to become involved with Project Recycle to help with collecting paper from the bins, such as Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity helped this year.

Erio also said he plans to help Senator Terese Lang arrange the organization fair which is planned for next fall.

The fair will be an opportunity for organizations to set up a booth and inform students about what the organization, he said.

Delegates lobby

An Eastern delegation of eight faculty members and 20 students lobbied Wednesday in Springfield at the University Professionals of Illinois student-faculty lobby day.

Student Body President Terry Teele said the faculty and students were received well by state legislators.

He said legislators seemed "sympathetic" to Eastern students' concerns on the cutting of higher education budgets.

However legislators expressed concern over how revenue could be generated to keep higher education budgets at their current level.

Library workers' hour cuts best alternative

Editorial

Some money is always better than no money at all.

And asking working students to take a cut in hours is better than students being fired when only a short time is left in the semester.

Booth Library student workers have recently had to take a cut in the number of hours they can work in order to ensure there is enough money to pay salaries until the fiscal year ends June 30.

Since April 15, an average of two hours has been cut from the weekly schedules of 50 student workers whose salaries are paid for with state, rather than federal, funds.

Dean of Library Services Wilson Luquire said the cuts are needed to cover student salaries. Luquire said this year's total budget would not cover the salaries of the current employees.

It is unfortunate there was a shortage in the library budget this year and administrators should work to see that a shortage be avoided in the future. But the shortage is understandable with the current economic problems drastically affecting the state budget.

It would have been simpler for library administrators to lay off student employees and the salary problem would have been solved. However, the simple solution would have inevitably hurt many students and forced them to find another source of income late in the school year.

Luquire and his assistants did a commendable job by cutting hours instead of jobs. Switching and adjusting 50 schedules cannot be an easy task, but library administrators realized students depend on money they earn for expenses such as food, laundry and social activities.

Although we hope this problem will not occur again, other departments with budgetary problems should, in the future, look at the library's situation as an example of consideration for students being used when solving problems.

While student workers may not be happy about taking a cut in hours, most workers should agree some hours are better than no hours, and some money is always better than no money.

Your Turn

Don't criticize athletes

Editor:

We feel that Dave Claypool's article, "Laurels and Darts of the Year" was, for the most part unnecessary and distasteful. What right does Mr. Claypool, a non-collegiate athlete, have to insult and deride the ability of Tom Detmer, Rich Magsamen, Ricky Robinson, Geno Savegnago, Jeff Christensen and the football team?

These fine athletes have shown great ability in previous games to prove they can perform on a college team to help Eastern reach its high esteem that it is today in athletic standards. Even while complimenting the bat of Kevin Seitzer, he proceeded to cut down his defensive ability in the very same sentence.

So our advice to you, Mr. Claypool, until you can prove that you can compete on the college level: leave these talented athletes of Eastern alone. For as we all know, they are playing and you aren't!

Coffey letter 'annoying'

Editor:

We are annoyed by Tim Ulmer's letter in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Eastern News. The charge of unobjective reporting is a matter of opinion, but the reporter did not misquote Senator Max Coffey.

We were present in Coffey's office on April 22 when he said, "I feel discriminated against. I have a female colleague who makes more money than I do and she has less seniority."

Coffey may not have meant that statement, but he did say it nonetheless. It is impossible for anyone to read a politician's mind to decipher what he meant from what he actually said.

If you were shocked when you read the article, Tim, imagine how shocked we were when he heard Coffey talk about being paid on a seniority basis. And yes, we questioned that comment, too.

The statement only lessened our opinion of Coffey. His denial of it does not raise our estimation of him.

'Unjust' charges made

Editor:

This letter is in reference to the incident that occurred April 30 during a dance sponsored by one of the black greek organizations.

Once again the black greeks were wrongly accused of a fighting confrontation that had supposedly happened in the Alumni Lounge of the Union. Instead of finding out the facts, the supervisors who were out on duty that night lost their heads because they saw a group of black men together and ran for the campus police.

Contrary to what the supervisors believed, the "fight" was simply a group of black men trying to avoid a fight on the grounds of the university.

Because of this incident, the dance dates scheduled for this weekend are in jeopardy of being cancelled.

Mr. Bill Clark and Mr. Dave Tuttle said the black greek community must promise that another fight will not break out in the Union before we can continue to hold dances in the Union.

Firstly, who are we to stop a fight? Just because the people are fighting are black does not mean they are greek, does it?

Secondly, what are the jobs of the supervisors at these dances? They can never be found when an organization needs them to get change, to set up an extra table or to help with setting up other university facilities. Yet, they can sniff out fights among the blacks. Instead of doing the job intended of them, which is to ask people to come inside the dance and to stop loitering, they'll tell you "Our job is not telling your people to come inside."

Your job in the Union is to see that it is used properly in accordance with the policies of Eastern Illinois University.

Lastly, please take into account that the blacks on this campus bring in a large sum of the revenue at this university. This includes academics as well as sports.

If this university continues to employ people who still hold "Jim Crow" attitudes, the black community may stop being passive on a lot of unjust accusations.

Mr. EIU coverage inept

Editor:

The Daily Eastern News has slept through another university event. Your coverage of the Mr. EIU contest was the most inept piece of journalism I have ever read. First of all, the picture of the contest published in Monday's paper didn't show all the contestants. The first and second place participants are barely visible and the third place winner isn't in it at all. The picture didn't convey the atmosphere of excitement or competition present at the contest for it was taken during a period of absent of posing.

Secondly, the article in Wednesday's paper with interviews of the third place winner, a potential contestant who didn't make it to the contest and a participant who didn't win could only reflect on the negative aspects of the show.

How about a picture and interview with Ken Diana, the winner and judged most muscular? Perhaps a picture of Ken and John Stumpf, the runner-up, posing with the trophies would be appropriate. How about some quotes from the judge, Carl Parmenter? He had nothing but praise for the contestants. Parmenter said it was the best intercollegiate line-up he had ever seen. What was a very positive school event which all students could be proud was portrayed by the paper as a useless flex of muscle and a waste of time.

Congratulations to all participants on the fine show. Your hard work in the weight room sure showed and I for one will look forward to next year's contest.

Reports precede sentencing of ex-students

by Peggy Schneider

Pre-sentencing background reports on two former Eastern students found guilty of home invasion this spring are currently being compiled by the Coles County Probation Office.

The reports on Carlos Johnson, 21, and Paul Rathgeb, 20, include family information, past work record, any prior convictions and any counseling either of the two may have had, Coles County State's Attorney Nancy Owen said Wednesday.

The impartially gathered information will provide the judge with background to aid in sentencing Johnson and Rathgeb, Owen added.

Pam Strud, a Coles County probation officer specializing in pre-sentencing, said Wednesday she could not release any information on the pre-sentencing reports to protect Johnson's and Rathgeb's rights.

Owen said she expected Johnson's report to be finished "within a few weeks."

Both men were charged in connection with a September incident at the David Dow residence, 128 W. Jackson Ave., in which 80-year-old Ruby Dow was beaten, and a second incident at the Mitchell Powell home, 609 C St.

Johnson was found guilty in February of home invasion, two counts of burglary and two counts of aggravated battery.

Rathgeb was found guilty in April of home invasion, burglary and aggravated battery in connection with the Dow incident. He was also found guilty of battery in the Powell incident, but found not guilty of burglary in that incident.

Johnson remains in the Coles County Jail, while Rathgeb was released on $60,000 bond and is currently living with his parents in the Alton area, Owen said.

Both could be sentenced to six to 30 years for the Class X (home invasion) felony, Owen said.

Johnson filed a motion April 8 for a new trial, but no hearing date has been set, a spokesman for the Coles County Circuit Clerk's Office said Wednesday.

Owen said it was "too early to speculate" on Johnson's chances of receiving a new trial or on how the prosecution would handle a new trial.

Rathgeb has 30 days after April 14, when the verdict was decided, to file a post-trial motion for a new trial, Owen added.

Rathgeb's attorney, John Muller, said Wednesday that he plans to file a post-trial motion for a new trial or an arrest of judgment on behalf of his client.

A post-trial motion must be made within the time allotted so the right of appeal can be retained, he said. Points which may later be used in an appeal would be raised in the motion.

One point which could be raised in the motion will concern an "impropriety" involving one of the jurors, while a prospective juror, Muller said. He declined further comment on that point.

The chances of being granted a new trial or an arrest of judgment are "poor to none," Muller added.

"The case is a hot issue, with high public indignation. Judges are human; they won't grant a motion to let a guy off," he said.

If a post-trial motion is not granted, Muller said he will appeal.

Research firm offers sources of aid Senate picks speaker

by Kenda Burrows

Although a computer research company based in New York says it may be able to provide students with financial aid through unclaimed awards, an Eastern official said the chances of a student receiving money through such a program are not good.

Egon Mayer, founder of the Academic Resource Center, said he estimated that $100 million in unclaimed private and public scholarships is available nationwide.

"Most of that money goes unused because people are not aware of the many types of scholarships available," Mayer said.

For a $45 fee the company will guarantee students at least five different sources of academic aid through computer matching, Mayer said.

However, Director of Financial Aids Sue McKenna said she did not believe the Academic Resource Center would be a worthwhile service for Eastern students.

"We don't have anything through our office that goes unclaimed," she said. "I would be very doubtful, in this day and age, if there is any money that is unclaimed."

Mayer said examples of many awards such as cadet scholarships, newspaper carrier scholarships and women's basketball scholarships go unclaimed.

The Academic Resource Center matches information provided by the student on a computer-coded application form with information contained in the company's computers on the scholarships available nationwide, he explained.

"The range of awards is enormous. Each source has different qualifications and the objective is to match the students with the awards they are qualified for," Mayer said.

Mayer said the computer files contain nearly all sources of organizations that provide anything from $100 awards to full scholarships based on academic and other standards.

"The computer matches characteristics of the applicants with aid like a computer dating service matches people," Mayer added.

He said the computer service would save students and their parents both time and money by searching out aid sources which might be available to them.

Although the number of successful student applications for aid are not available because of the relatively short history of the company, Mayer said, "we are finding that most of the people who make use of all sources of aid will usually get something."

Students may obtain application forms for the service by writing to the Academic Resource Center at 212 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10010.

The Student Senate Wednesday night elected Teresa Lang as speaker of the fall senate.

Lang was elected speaker by a vote of 20-7 with one abstention, defeating Senator Phil Montgomery.

Outlining her goals as speaker, Lang said her main goal is to organize a retreat for all senators. At the retreat, senators would examine their duties as a senator.

Also, the student government constitution, bylaws, committee duties, and parliamentary law would be reviewed at the retreat, Lang said.

Lang said she will "keep senators on their toes" and work at keeping the senate "honest and open for suggestions."

"I hope to work well with administration, faculty and students for the betterment of Eastern," Lang said.

Lang's general goals are generating a feeling among senators of "making them proud of who they are, who they represent and more aware of the position they hold."

Senator Karen Kupsche recommended Lang for the position as the most qualified candidate to fill the role.

Also, Kupsche said as Campus Relations Committee chairman, Lang made the committee productive.

Name change suggested: from 'school' to 'college'

by Mary Holland

Lewis Coon of the math department has sent a memorandum to two faculty boards recommending that the names of Eastern's schools be changed to colleges.

Coon, a member of Eastern's Council of Faculties to the Board of Governors, said he sent the memorandum to the Council on Academic Affairs and the Faculty Senate after studying other BOG institutions.

"I keep looking at our sister institutions, all of whom designate their administrative units as colleges. It seems to me we should be in line with our sister institutions," he said.

Eastern's six undergraduate schools include the School of Business, the School of Education, the School of Fine Arts, the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, the School of Technology, and the School of Home Economics. In addition to these schools, Eastern also has one college—the College of Arts and Sciences.

Under Coon's recommendation, only schools with three departments would be changed to colleges.

Some individuals believe a college is a higher administrative unit than a school, Coon added, and thus a more prestigious place for faculty members to teach.

CAA Chairperson Sharon Bartling said the council referred Coon's recommendation to Vice President for Academic Affairs Stanley Rives. Bartling said Rives will check with deans of the schools to see if there is any support for the name change.

CAA to vote on minors proposal

by Linda Trierwiler

The Council on Academic Affairs will vote Thursday on proposed non-teaching minors in history, zoology and home economics.

The minors are being submitted to the CAA in response to a request by Stanley Rives, vice president for academic affairs. Rives asked departments to make their minors more "structured" by requiring students to complete specific courses.

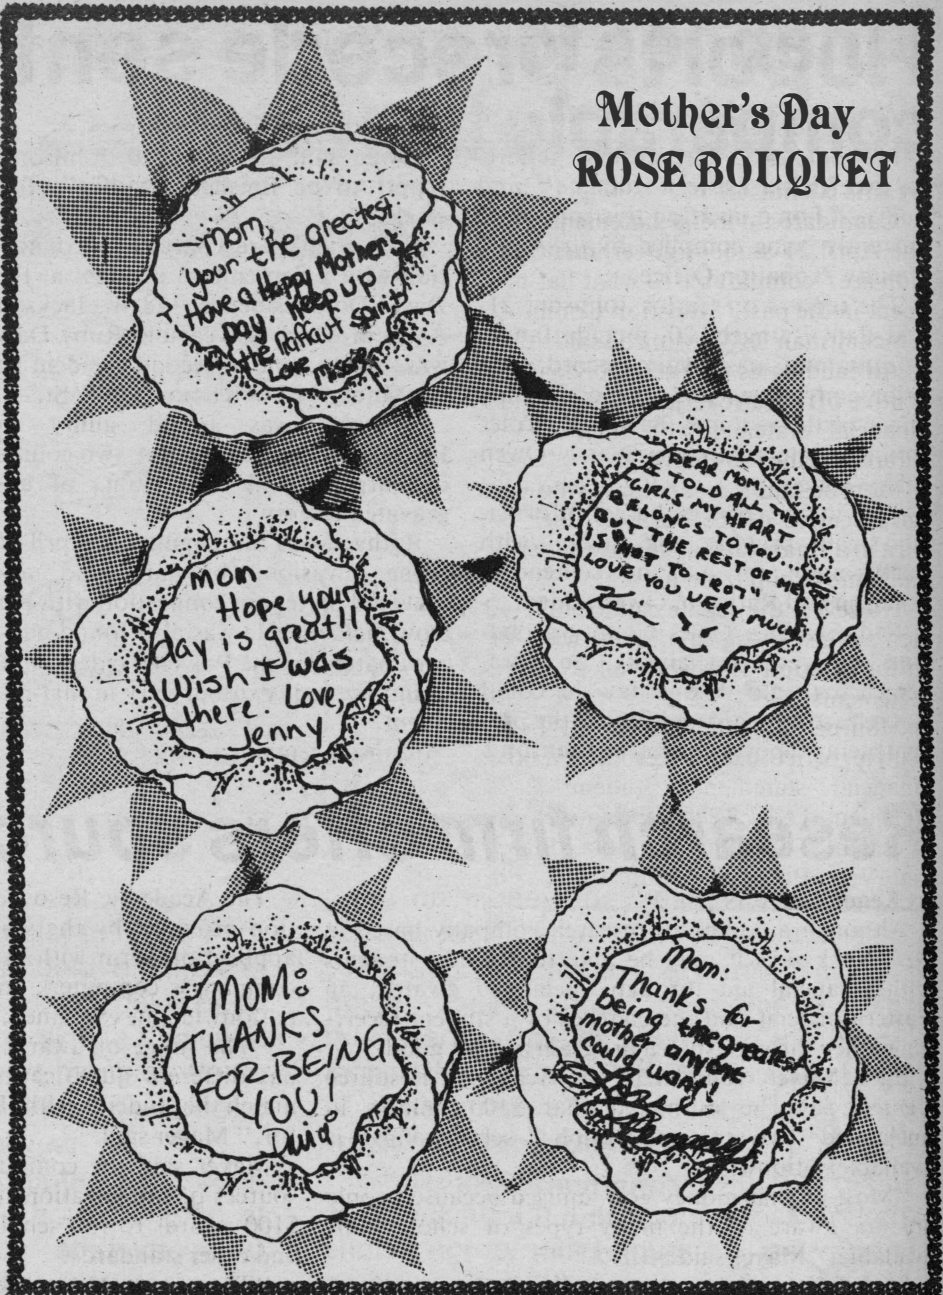

Currently, students can earn a minor if they complete 18 hours of any departmental courses, as long as six of those hours are at the 3000 level or above.

The CAA will also be voting on a proposal submitted by Lucy Gabbard of the Arts and Science Curriculum Committee. The proposal requires that students maintain a cumulative grade point average of 2.0 in courses included under their non-teaching minor.

The CAA will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Tuscola-Arcola Room.

Finances for candidates comparable to past years

by Kris Nicholson

Candidate financial statements from the April 21 student government election are "comparable to what has been spent in the past," Election Committee Co-chairman R. W. Monroe said.

All candidates for Student Senate executive offices are required to submit a financial statement of their expenditures during the campaign.

Monroe said if a candidate who wins an executive office position does not turn in a financial statement, the senate can remove him from his seat.

However, the senate cannot take action against those candidates who lost in the election and who fail to return statements.

Monroe said all A.C.T.I.O.N. executive office candidates turned in a financial statement. Student Body President Terry Teele, Executive Vice President Tony Parascandola, Financial Vice President John Cole, Administrative Assistant for Collective Bargaining Bob Erio and Board of Governors Representative Matt Glover were all on the A.C.T.I.O.N. slate.

Executive office candidates on the A.C.T.I.O.N. slate spent $960 on their campaign.

The only other executive office candidate who turned in a financial statement was student body president candidate Cheryle Petrik. Her financial campaign statement was $333.09.

Al Siepker, candidate for BOG representative, said he was not aware that he was required to turn in a financial statement to the committee.

However, Siepker estimated he spent $450 on his campaign.

Todd Carrier, candidate for student body president, and Joel Storm, candidate for BOG representative, did not turn in financial statements. They could not be reached for comment.

Mickey comes to campus

by Maureen Foertsch

Next year's Homecoming theme, "Disney on Parade," was announced Tuesday at the last University Board meeting of the semester.

Homecoming Committee Chairman Tina O'Keefe said, however, the theme of "Disney On Parade" is negotiable. If problems are caused by the copyright of the "Disney" theme, the alternatives "Lights on Broadway" and "The Greatest Show on Earth" will be considered, she said.

In other business, Movie Committee Chairman John Brom said he is working on the preparation of survival kits to be given free of charge to the first 200 people at each showing of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," to be shown at 8 p.m., 10 p.m. and midnight Friday in the Union Grand Ballroom.

The movie is an audience participation film. The survival kits will consist of rice and toast to be thrown by the audience during wedding and "toasting" scenes, he added.

‘Spirited’ class produces cabinets

Ordinance put on file for public inspection

by Cathy Gregory

Anyone passing by the Applied Arts Education Building Monday may have wondered what the clamor was all about.

Sounds of buzzing saws and odors of sawdust and varnish overcame most of the building as the sixth annual production run of Technology Education 3074 “Production Systems” class went underway.

“Each year the class forms a company which researches, develops, markets and produces a product which they design themselves,” instructor John Wright said.

Wright said the purpose of the class is to get the students to apply technical skills to the problem-solving aspects of mass production.

This year the company, which calls itself Spirit Builders Ltd., mass produced 50 wine cabinets which feature frosted etching on a glass door and can accommodate four bottles and four glasses.

The company was divided into three groups: research and development, marketing and production, Wright said. After a semester of planning, everyone participated in the manufacturing of the product they developed.

Wright said in addition to printing brochures on cabinet care, members of the class also print and sell their own stock for the company.

Class members prepare for the production run by conducting three “dry runs” which help detect any problems that may occur during the manufacturing process.

“We averaged one cabinet every 10 minutes,” Wright said. “This has been a good group to work with. They’re very smooth running.”

Senior Russ Claeys, president of Spirit Builders Ltd., said this year’s class has done a better job than any previous class. “I think the secret is that everyone got along really well and pulled their own weight. There weren’t any prima donnas.”

Junior Doug Mason said, “We’ve learned how to start an enterprise from scratch, develop a product and operate the manufacturing process successfully.”

“It wears me out worrying sometimes, but this is my favorite class to teach. It’s always interesting to see what the class will come up with to make,” Wright said.

“Right up until the day of production you keep insisting that it will never work, but it always does,” Wright said, “every time.”

The Charleston City Council Tuesday placed on file for public inspection an amending ordinance that could give city police and fire department employees a five percent pay raise.

Commissioner John Beusch favored putting the amendment on file because he wanted to look into the method of disbursement for the raises.

The council also placed on file a resolution for emergency demolition of the old Linley building on Sixth Street and Van Buren Avenue, in addition to a loan agreement with the Charleston National Bank for $75,000 to be used for construction of an off-street parking area to replace the Linley building.

In other business, the council approved bids for chemicals to be used for water treatment and approved $13,800 to be spent for the repainting of the water tower.

The council also approved an ordinance relating to the acquisition of real estate and approved a resolution for additional street lighting on Sherwood Place.

A resolution authorizing the advertisement of bids for fuel was placed on file.

If you're tying the knot it pays to know the ropes.

It's kind of ironic, getting engaged is one of the most emotional and sentimental times of your life. But one of the first things you have to do is spend a large amount of money in an area with which you are probably rather unfamiliar: diamond rings.

That's where S.A. Peck comes in. We've been in the business of importing diamonds and designing them into beautiful engagement and wedding rings for over 50 years. With this kind of experience, our knowledgeable gemologists can steer you through the confusing world of diamonds and settings, and help you pick the right one for you.

Once that's done, we ease your mind even more by selling you that ring for a saving of up to 50% less than what you'd pay for the same ring elsewhere.

Send for our free 44 page catalog, full of over 300 color pictures of wedding and engagement rings, all available at up to 50% saving. It'll get those knots out of your stomach fast!

Chat with VP earns credit

by Peggy Schneider

A casual chat with the Vice President of the United States is not usually included in political science course syllabuses, but one Eastern sophomore earned credit for such small talk.

"I met Vice President George Bush when I went to the Senate chamber to talk to (Illinois Sen. Charles) Percy. Bush just popped out and we shook hands and just chatted. I was in awe of the man," sophomore Douglas Hasler of Paris, Ill., said Tuesday.

Hasler, an economics major who said he is considering changing his major to political science, recently served a 15-week internship with Percy's office in Washington, D.C.

Hasler said he earned about 14 to 15 credit hours from political science teacher Joe Connelly.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig and the British and Argentine ambassadors were also among the nationally known figures Hasler said he encountered while in Washington.

He added, however, that tight security prevented him from getting close enough to speak to President Reagan.

Hasler applied for the internship last October by sending a resume and recommendations to Percy's office.

His duties in Washington took him from the press secretary's office to the office of the state projects director, he said.

Working with the projects director (who approves funds for state projects) for six weeks enabled Hasler to become involved in a hometown issue—Conrail's Paris to Cairo railroad line.

The line, which Hasler calls "the state's only southern access rail route," had been put up for sale, but currently has no buyers.

"The senator's office is now concerned that red tape will slow the process or push it aside. In the meantime, the track is falling into disrepair," Hasler said.

On a typical day during his internship, Hasler said he spent nine or 10 hours in the office, and spent many nights representing Percy at receptions.

His experiences gave him a new appreciation for government representatives, he said.

"People in Washington are very sincere in trying to help the constituents back home, but the mass media—especially television—paints a very unfair picture of 'those crooks.' It's a farce; I've never seen people work so hard," he added.

Softball to face Wright State in regional play

by Kirby Flowers

Eastern's women softballers are bound for the Midwest regional, where they will defend their 37-4 slate and top seed against the Wright State Raiders.

The game will be played at 2 p.m. Thursday at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville.

The Panthers have yet to play the Raiders this season because their earlier contest was canceled due to poor weather conditions.

"It should be a good game," Eastern coach Deanna D'Abbraccio said. "Every team wants to knock off the number-one seeded team, so no matter who we play we have got to be sharp."

Wright State enters the first round action sporting a 14-9 mark and a lot of youth in the Raider lineup.

"Our entire infield is made up of freshmen," Raider assistant coach Cindy Lococo said. "We were pretty unpredictable early in the season but we have become more consistent now and have proved that we can play with anyone."

The Raiders are led by junior pitchers Chris Snyder and Terri Hobbs.

Snyder has a 6-6 record with many of those losses coming early in the season, while Hobbs boasts a 7-3 mark and has won several important games for the Raiders this season. Lococo said she is unsure of which one of their Junior hurlers will face the Panthers

Thursday.

D'Abbraccio added, "I doubt that the Raiders 14-9 record is indicative of their teams talent. They have a history of fine softball teams and it will be a tough game to start the regional with."

The Panthers finished in sixth place in the regional last year and are hoping to improve on that mark this year, D'Abbraccio said.

Mary Tieg, the Panthers' left fielder-catcher, leads the team at the plate with an impressive .333 average. Shortstop Nancy Kassebaum and center fielder Penny Berg follow close behind with .323 and .322 averages.

Donna Ridgway will be on the mound for the Panthers. Ridgway has a fine 14-3 slate and has five shut outs to her credit this season.

D'Abbraccio could not praise her pitching staff enough for their efforts this season, she said.

"We could not have had the success that we have had this season without the efforts of our three pitchers, Kathy Richards, Sandy Muskopf, and Ridgway," D'Abbraccio added. "I cannot give them enough credit for the job they have done."

"I feel if we can continue to play with the intensity that we have all season and remain running the bases well and be aggressive at the plate we will turn in a good performance," the Panther mentor added.

Tracksters to defend MCC crown

by Mike Prizy

Eastern's trackmen travel to Macomb Thursday and Friday for the Mid-Continent Conference championships. The Panthers are out to defend their conference title of a year ago.

Eastern dominated last year's MCC meet scoring 110 points. Northern Iowa placed second to the Panthers with 61, Western Illinois was third with 45 and Southwest Missouri was fourth with 13.

This year's addition of the MCC title meet is expected to be closer than last year's Panther rout, Eastern coach Neil Moore said.

"I think it will be close between us and Northern Iowa," Moore said. "I think we can win, but not by the margin we won by last year. This meet could turn into a real dog fight."

Moore said the key to retaining the MCC title will be on how well the Panther distance runners perform.

"We need a real good output from our distance people or we are sunk," Moore said.

Moore said he could have underestimated the scoring potential of NIU, but added, "they have weightmen and some distance runners with one good 800-meter runner."

Tournament bid bleak after slugger loss

by Susan McCann

Although Eastern's baseball season will not be officially over until the NCAA tournament bids are announced, Sunday's 4-1 loss to Illinois Wesleyan probably marked the end of the 1982 campaign.

The loss to Wesleyan gave the Panthers a 29-12 mark for the spring, which is probably not good enough for Eastern to receive a bid for post-season play.

"If we had finished 30-11, I would have said the odds were 60-40 against us getting a bid," Eastern coach Tom McDevitt said. "But at 29-12, I'd say the odds are nine to one against us."

"This group just doesn't have the consistency to be a tournament team," he added.

That inconsistent play is shown by the Panthers' victories over highly-regarded teams like Indiana State and Southern Illinois-Carbondale and their losses to teams of lesser quality.

After Eastern split a twin bill with Indiana State, the Panthers promptly dropped a double-header to SIU-Edwardsville.

Also, following one of the first twin-bill sweeps of Carbondale in recent history, Eastern lost a single contest to Illinois Wesleyan, a Division III school.

Despite the Panthers' inconsistent play, they started the season by winning 10 of their first 11 contests and finished strong with 12 victories in their last 14 outings.

Although the defense was not up to the par that McDevitt said he expected, the Panther pitching crew's showing was better than he had anticipated.

Southpaw Bill Morton compiled the best ERA (2.04) on McDevitt's staff, allowing just eight earned runs in over 35 innings on the mound. His 5-1 record was second only to Marshall Crutcher's 6-1 mark.

Crutcher was a workhorse for Eastern this spring, throwing 55 innings, tops on the staff, and chalking up five complete games en route to a 3.42 earned run average.

One of his finest performances was a one-hit shutout of SIU-C in which he faced the minimum number of batters—21.

Freshman hurler Mick Freed was a pleasant surprise for the Panthers, as he came on to pitch over 52 innings and compile a 3-2 record with a 3.44 ERA.

Freed's record, like many of the other Eastern pitchers' marks, could have been much better if the defense had given adequate support. But performances like Freed's complete-game loss to Illinois were wasted by poor defense and weak hitting.

In that contest, Freed allowed only two earned runs, but five Panther miscues and a feeble offense gave the Illini a 7-1 victory.

When the offense produced it was awesome, with the Panthers tallying in double figures on 13 occasions.

A major contributor to the Eastern cause was junior college transfer Troy Harper, who earned his way into the starting lineup on the strength of his offensive prowess.

He rapped 48 hits in 106 at-bats for a .453 average, best among the Panthers. His total of 10 round-trippers was also tops among Eastern hitters.

Kevin Seitzer, whom McDevitt described as "probably the best sophomore hitter in the Midwest," led the team in hits, runs batted in and runs scored.

He stroked 57 safeties, tallied 49 times and drove in 50 markers while compiling a .416 batting average. Seitzer proved to be a tough out, fanning only six times in 137 official trips to the plate.
